2. Comments.

Professor Ramchandani is passionate about accounting research and made this class very enjoyable. I learned a lot about thought-processes when trying to digest academic papers and the theory behind certain concepts. It was definitely challenging for me but I appreciated how much he cared about whether or not we understood the reasoning behind it all.

This is one of the best courses I've taken in university. The content was interesting and challenging. The instructor was excellent, explaining concepts clearly and structuring the class and assignments to keep moving at a good pace.

The course was an interesting topic to learn about. Its nice to know how researchers use other theories and methodologies to support their thought or idea. I also like how professor Abhi gave us an option to be in a group or by urself to do the project. Some students dont like being in groups and work better alone, but some students love being in groups. So i thought this was a nice thing to do for the students. I believe this course is an important course to take and it gives you a lot of tools that would prepare someone to write research papers. Even though this course challenged my brain so much, understanding the topic at the end was so interesting that I would tell family members about it.

Professor is very knowledgeable about the material and, overall, an excellent instructor. However, he can be very particular about the exact answers he wants during class discussions. Sometimes it felt like no matter how close a student's answer was, it still wasn't quite "right," even though from our perspective it didn't seem different from what he was looking for. It often felt like he was aiming for very specific wording tied to exact definitions, which made me hesitant to participate because I assumed I'd probably be told my answer was wrong. He is also quite particular when walking around to check on students and sometimes makes comments like "by the way, you don't do it that way," which can come across as judgmental. Using what we learned in class, this kind of monitoring can discourage performance, and it made me less comfortable speaking up.

Abhi was very informative and made learning fun.
